HEAD KICKS AND GUILLOTINES AT EFC 140!

South Africa's Alex Suzuki meets DRC knockout specialist Jerry “Jey King” Kambata in a welterweight showdown on 3 December.

Johannesburg, South Africa - 10 November 2026

One has made a habit of finishing opponents with his legs. The other has developed a reputation for finishing fights with his arms. On Thursday, 3 December, two athletes with very different approaches to ending a contest will meet in the EFC Hexagon.

South Africa's Alex Suzuki will face Jerry “Jey King” Kambata of the Democratic Republic of the Congo in a welterweight contest at EFC 140, bringing together a proven submission specialist and a knockout artist with a reputation for spectacular finishes.

Suzuki, who represents CPT Wrestling For MMA, has built his professional career around a relentless approach to grappling, using wrestling and forward pressure to create opportunities for submissions.

Both of his professional victories have come by second-round guillotine choke, demonstrating his ability to capitalise when opponents leave their necks exposed.

The South African has also competed internationally in Japan and previously captured the Barebones MMA Middleweight Championship, adding valuable experience to his development as a professional athlete.

But getting close enough to apply those skills against Kambata could prove dangerous.

Hailing from Lubumbashi in the DRC, Kambata has established a reputation for spectacular knockouts, including two first-round head-kick finishes that have made him a particularly dangerous opponent at striking distance.

With five victories from seven professional appearances, the Congolese athlete has competed across several African promotions, including Benin Fighting Championship, Impact Championship and Global Warrior Champions.

Training under Yadad Moser at Elite Training Center, Kambata combines powerful kicks with aggressive combinations and a willingness to pursue the finish whenever an opportunity presents itself.

With neither athlete known for taking the easy route to victory, their meeting promises an entertaining addition to EFC's final event of 2026.

Suzuki steps into the contest following the withdrawal of Jaco Du Plessis, who is recovering from surgery.

The welterweight showdown joins an EFC 140 card headlined by the Flyweight Championship contest between reigning champion Tumelo “Mellow” Manyamala and challenger Brandon Santos.

EFC 140 is presented by World Sports Betting and takes place on Thursday, 3 December at the WSB EFC Arena in Johannesburg, South Africa. Tickets and broadcast information are available at: https://efcworldwide.com.
